AVAILABLE AT

TYRONE MCKINLEY FREEMAN

Tyrone McKinley Freeman is an award-winning scholar, author and teacher who serves as Assistant Professor of Philanthropic Studies and Director of Undergraduate Programs at Indiana University Lilly Family School of Philanthropy. @MckinleyTyrone

Freeman's work examines African American philanthropic agency in historical and contemporary contexts with an emphasis on the ways in which African Americans have used philanthropy to express their dignity and humanity as well as to survive and press for massive social reform. His book, Madam C. J. Walker's Gospel of Giving: Black Women's Philanthropy during Jim Crow, examines African American women's history of charitable giving, activism, education, and social service provision through the life and example of Madam C. J. Walker, the early twentieth century black philanthropist and entrepreneur.

His work has appeared or been cited in O: The Oprah Magazine, USA Today, TIME, Newsweek, NewsOne, Blavity, The Conversation, Black Perspectives, Chronicle of Philanthropy, and the Stanford Social Innovations Review.

Dr. Freeman is co-author of Race, Gender and Leadership in Nonprofit Organizations (2011 Palgrave MacMillan). A proud HBCU grad, Tyrone earned a B.A. in English/Liberal Arts from Lincoln University (PA), a M.S. in Adult Education from Indiana University, a Master's in Urban and Regional Planning from Ball State University, and a Ph.D. in Philanthropic Studies from Indiana University.
